1. Multiplying these three factors leads to improved student outcomes:

2. Why is it important to collect implementation data?

3. List at least two locations that you have not previously thought to collect implementation data.

i. _____

ii. _____

4. For the locations listed above, are you more likely to collect implementation data for the intervention plan (e.g., instructional implementation fidelity), or the data collection plan (e.g., meeting/administrative implementation fidelity)?

NEXT STEPS:

Using our example on the different meeting types that relate to implementation data, consider how you would select specific examples from your school's literacy leadership team to use available implementation data to steer your system of instruction, assessment, and professional learning.

Fill in the table below:

Meeting Type (IEP, Curriculum Team, Data Team, PLC, etc)	Who	Frequency	Purpose	What outcomes are a result of the meeting?
